

I definitely think that companies should be limited on how much of the broadcasting market they can own. As it stands, we are having a problem of getting objective media attention on a variety of topics. By eliminating the voices of the people, we are demolishing the rights I think a democratic society should have. Broadcasting and media are the most basic tools for the people, to have that monopolized, would be unconstitutional.